WELCOME FROM DEAN KARSTEN
SCHMIDT AND
PROVOST HARIOLF
WENZLER

Thank you for your interest in Germany's first and only private law school. Founded in Hamburg on the eve of the 21st century, Bucerius Law School was created to modernize legal education and to serve as a model for reforming German public universities. After seven exciting years, we are proud of our first generations of graduates. Their outstanding performance on the German First State Examination in Law has proven the success of our innovative approach.

Our accomplishments have sparked international attention, especially in the United States and China. Designed to meet the challenges of an increasingly interconnected world, our programs place special emphasis on international business law. Bucerius Law School provides students with a transnational expertise, equipping them with the tools necessary to approach problems that involve more than one legal system.

Our school has attracted scholars and students from all over the world. Bucerius maintains partnerships with 82 law schools in 27 countries and is particularly well connected within the United States. Our American partners include prestigious schools such as Cornell, Georgetown, and New York University, as well as the University of California, Berkeley, the University of Pennsylvania and Stanford University. Every fall term, some 80 students from all over the world attend our Exchange Program in International and Comparative Business Law. In China, Bucerius offers executive seminars on international business law in cooperation with the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences in Beijing and the China Europe International Business School (CEIBS) in Shanghai.

Bucerius annually enrolls about one hundred highly qualified candidates following a rigorous selection process in the LL.B. program and about fifty international students in the Master of Law and Business program (MLB), jointly offered with Germany's preeminent business school WHU, the Otto Beisheim School of Management. These students enjoy top-notch instruction from highly energetic, multilingual and experienced law and business professors. Together with leading practitioners from various countries, they help craft a curriculum that focuses on global issues.

We believe that high expectations, superior resources and institutional accountability result in academic and professional success. Our ideas are inspiring leaders in German and European higher education to modernize legal training and adapt to the challenges generated by an increasingly global society. Numerous accolades have confirmed our educational philosophy. Bucerius is ranked as one of the top three law schools in Germany according to leading news and business magazines including "WirtschaftsWoche," "karriere," "Capital" and "Der Spiegel."

Located in the international port city of Hamburg, Bucerius is primarily housed in a beautiful 19th century mansion that was once a state botanical institute. Our facilities showcase state-of-the-art technology and a rapidly expanding research library. We invite you to visit our vibrant campus and tour our website at www.law-school.de

Sincerely,

Two handwritten signatures in black ink. The first signature is 'Karsten Schmidt' and the second is 'Hariolf Wenzler'.

THE IDEA

Bucerius Law School was founded in 2000 by the ZEIT-Stiftung Ebelin und Gerd Bucerius, one of Germany's largest private foundations. The school is primarily housed in a former state botanical institute, built at the turn of the twentieth century. Bucerius has supplemented this historic building with several adjacent modern facilities. The appearance of Bucerius on the landscape of German legal education was heralded as a breakthrough because of its international and practical orientation. The school was quickly recognized as a model for reforming German higher education.

Bucerius Law School has continued to forge innovation. In 2002, the school introduced its International Exchange Program, which offers students from all over the world a unique opportunity to study international, European and German law. Since then, Bucerius has expanded its international activities. In 2003, Bucerius founded Bucerius Executive Education and began to offer executive courses to practicing lawyers in Germany and abroad. In 2004, the school presented its first executive seminar to young lawyers and legal professionals in Beijing, China, which covered topical issues within EU and German law. In 2005, the school's first graduating class outperformed students at public German law schools, proving the tremendous success of Bucerius' approach. Since 2006, Bucerius Law School has offered a "Master of Law and Business" (MLB), a unique program that is organized in cooperation with Germany's leading private business school, the Otto Beisheim School of Management. The program combines international economic law and business curricula.

GERD BUCERIUS (1906–1995)

Gerd Bucerius was a major founding figure of German post-War journalism and, consequently, of the Federal Republic of Germany. Bucerius was an independent spirit with a passion for democracy. Born in 1906, he witnessed the failure of the Weimar Republic. During the Third Reich, he experienced firsthand the destruction of civil rights. As a young attorney, he defended victims of Nazi persecution, and because he was married to a Jewish woman, he was denied a career in the civil service. These experiences led him to critically observe and actively shape post-War German society.

A highly talented man with an impatient creativity, Bucerius was a journalist and a businessman, a politician and a philanthropist. In 1949, as a representative of the conservative Christian Democratic Union party (CDU), he became a member of the first German Federal Parliament, where he served until 1962. His crowning achievement as a journalist was the establishment in 1946 of DIE ZEIT, Germany's leading intellectual weekly newspaper to this day. He remained closely involved with DIE ZEIT for the rest of his life, as its publisher and adviser, and as a journalist.

In 1971 he founded the ZEIT-Stiftung Ebelin und Gerd Bucerius, in order to further nurture civil society in Germany. In 2000, the ZEIT-Stiftung established Bucerius Law School in honor of Gerd Bucerius.

ZEIT-STIFTUNG EBELIN UND GERD BUCERIUS

The ZEIT-Stiftung Ebelin und Gerd Bucerius focuses its activities on research and scholarship, art and culture, and education and training. In the spirit of its founder Gerd Bucerius, it encourages new perspectives, the crossing of boundaries, and innovation. Intercultural dialogue is at the center of the foundation's international activities spanning above all Central and Eastern Europe, Israel and the United States. To help strengthen transatlantic partnerships, the ZEIT-Stiftung together with the German Marshall Fund of the United States, the Robert Bosch Stiftung, and the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation founded the Transatlantic Academy in Washington DC. The Academy serves as a forum for a select group of scholars from both sides of the Atlantic and from different academic and policy disciplines to examine a single set of issues. Working together from a transatlantic and interdisciplinary perspective, Academy fellows will make policy-relevant contributions to policy debates facing the transatlantic community.

The ZEIT-Stiftung is the founder and principal donor of Bucerius Law School. It contributes more than 60% of the annual budget (about 13 million Euro). By creating the first private German law school, the foundation laid a cornerstone in German higher education. For more information please visit www.zeit-stiftung.de

MISSION AND GOALS

Dedicated to excellence and innovation, Germany's first private law school trains legal professionals to become architects of a rapidly changing world. The challenges imposed by transnational markets and the substantial advancements in modern information technology are transforming today's legal institutions. Legal professionals will increasingly work in a transnational setting, and legal problems will exceed a single national order.

Bucerius Law School provides a new model for legal education combining rigorous, practice-oriented training, foreign language acquisition and a deep understanding of diverse legal cultures. Central to the vision of Bucerius Law School is to advance international legal education focusing on the world's economic centers: Europe, the United States and China.

THE EXPERIENCE

CURRICULUM

The Bucerius Law School program is designed to prepare legal professionals for a rapidly globalizing world. Intensive language training, a mandatory study abroad program and a campus where students from all over the world learn together are among our greatest assets.

After three years of study, successful candidates acquire the internationally recognized LL.B. (Bachelor of Laws) degree. After four years, they complete the German First State Examination in Law. The academic year includes three intensive, twelve-week terms. Courses are taught in German. English language courses are mandatory, while students may also choose to learn French, Spanish, Russian or Chinese. In order to advance their understanding of foreign legal systems and cultures, students are required to spend a term at one of Bucerius' 82 affiliated universities throughout the world.

At Bucerius Law School, students receive practical legal training through mandatory internships and exposure to scholar-practitioners. The legal program is also enriched by required lectures and workshops on topics drawn from a broad range of academic disciplines including art, philosophy and the natural sciences.

STUDENTS

Each year Bucerius Law School accepts about one hundred new students on the strength of their academic and extra-curricular achievements. The competitive admissions process begins with a written examination. Successful candidates are then invited to participate in group discussions, presentations and oral examinations with professors and practitioners. All candidates must also pass an English-proficiency examination. In addition, the school expects successful candidates to demonstrate strong motivation, a sense of responsibility and maturity, intellectual excellence and adaptive social skills, including the ability to thrive in a proactive environment.

Bucerius Law School demonstrates its commitment to a merit-based “need-blind” admissions policy by waiving half of tuition for exceptional students who qualify under German federal government financial means testing. Furthermore, the school offers generous scholarships and loan plans. Bucerius also created a unique funding approach known as a “generational contract.” Under this plan, in lieu of tuition, a student agrees to pay eight percent of his or her annual income for about 10 years after graduation.

PROGRAMS

THE INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE PROGRAM

In 2002, Bucerius Law School introduced its Program in International and Comparative Business Law, offering intensive, high-level, international academic training. Each fall term (September to December) approximately 80 students from our partner universities study in Hamburg. As they typically represent about 20 different countries, the students make the program by definition an exercise in internationalism and the exchange of legal and cultural perspectives.

The International Exchange Program includes the largest consortium of ABA accredited schools, and is one of the world's top study abroad programs. Renowned international and German professors and lawyers teach the Program, which consists of two six-week sessions. American students can earn ABA credits and European students receive ECTS points.

Courses are taught entirely in English. Topics typically include EU and German law, comparative law, alternative dispute resolution, international business transactions and public law. Students are also required to enroll in a survey course on German law. Those who speak German are welcome to select courses from the non-English curriculum. Optional German-language training is also available for interested students. More information is available at www.law-school.de/exchangeprogram.htm

THE BUCERIUS SUMMER PROGRAM

The Bucerius Summer Program in International Business Law offers law students the opportunity to deepen their knowledge and broaden their understanding of legal issues that arise in international business transactions. The program is open to students from all over the world and is tailored to prepare participants for the needs of companies and law firms that operate in a rapidly globalizing world. The intensive four-week program is comprised of seven courses in international business law and covers topics like law and economics, international mergers and acquisitions, and capital market regulations among others. The program is taught by renowned German and international professors and practitioners in settings that enable participants to understand the international dimensions of the issues.

Each course is worth one ABA credit or two ECTS points. Credits or grades earned at Bucerius may be transferred at the discretion of a student's home university. Extra-curricular activities and excursions complement this short-term study-abroad experience and familiarize participants with German history and culture. All courses are taught entirely in English. For details please visit www.law-school.de/summerprogram.htm

"THE BUCERIUS PROGRAM PUT THE LAW INTO CONTEXT. WE WENT BEYOND THE LEGAL TEXTS TO EXPLORE HOW LAW INTERACTS WITH EUROPE'S HISTORY AND ITS IDENTITY TODAY. THE IMPRESSIVE ARRAY OF PROFESSORS FROM ACROSS EUROPE AND THE U.S. MADE IT A TRULY INTERNATIONAL LEARNING EXPERIENCE." Margaret K. Lewis, New York University, Bucerius International Program 2002

"BUCERIUS WAS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO MEET QUITE A NUMBER OF EXTRAORDINARY INDIVIDUALS. MOREOVER, I PARTICULARLY CREDIT THE INTERNATIONAL PROGRAM WITH HAVING SUPPLIED THE ESSENTIAL CONTACTS THROUGH WHICH I SECURED MY PRESENT POSITION AT HENGELER MUELLER IN FRANKFURT/ M." Yoseph Choi, University of Virginia, Bucerius International Program 2003

BUCERIUS / WHU MASTER OF LAW AND BUSINESS

In today's global economy, companies and organizations are regularly confronted with international issues that involve both legal and economic aspects. The Master of Law and Business (MLB) program responds to the global economy's need for legal and business professionals, who have a solid understanding of international business law, as well as international management. MLB graduates boast an impressive set of additional skills and knowledge that are directly relevant for work in international companies, law firms, and other organizations. They belong to a still small group of professionals who have been systematically trained to take an interdisciplinary approach to legal and management questions.

The one-year-program is offered in cooperation with Germany's leading private business school, the Otto Beisheim School of Management (WHU), and taught by renowned professors and practitioners from Germany and abroad. The MLB Program is held entirely in English and is comprised of complementary law and business courses, an intercultural course of general studies, courses geared toward strengthening professional skills, an eight-week internship, and the writing of a Master's thesis. The comparative approach and the international composition of the student body foster an intercultural understanding of legal and business issues.

The program is particularly designed for graduates in law or business/-economics and young professionals with some working experience, but also welcomes a limited number of graduates from other academic backgrounds who have a strong professional interest in law and business. CONTINUING EDUCATION

Bucerius Executive Education offers advanced training, which combines academic excellence, practical relevance, individual solution strategies, and an intercultural orientation. Courses are taught by professors from Bucerius Law School and its international partner schools, as well as by experienced managers, tax experts and legal practitioners with exceptional expertise. Topics range from academically grounded advanced legal training with clear practical relevance, to business and management programs geared towards the current challenges facing globalized markets, to intercultural programs and international networking activities.

Programs come in two formats: Tailor-made in-house programs and open enrollment courses. In-house programs are developed in close collaboration with clients and can be held in German or English. The programs are carefully aligned to the requirements of the law firm or company. The open enrollment programs cover practice-oriented, specialized knowledge and core competencies in one-day seminars or intensive courses over several weeks. Topics and dates can be found at www.bucerius-education.de

PROGRAMS FOCUS ON THREE AREAS

Law: academically grounded advanced legal training with a clear practical orientation

Business and Management: innovative programs for global decision-makers in cooperation with leading business schools worldwide

Key qualifications: include presentation techniques, conflict management and legal language programs

LOCATION

HAMBURG

Located on the Elbe River and surrounding Lake Alster, Hamburg's main geographic, historical and enduring feature is water. Founded in 810 A.D., Hamburg earned its place in history by becoming the most strategic port in the Hanseatic League of North German cities, which for centuries controlled trade in the Baltic and North Seas. Nicknamed "Venice of the North," the city boasts many canals, rivers, lakes and parks. As Germany's second largest city, Hamburg offers numerous cultural and business opportunities, all of which boast an international flair. More than 65,000 students also create the atmosphere of a major university city. From bars and clubs to restaurants and cafes, museums and galleries, concerts and parks, shops and sights: Hamburg has it all. Located in the heart of the old continent, Hamburg enjoys excellent railway connections while its airport services the vast majority of European capital cities. London, Paris, Brussels and Prague are only a stone's throw away.
